

Willaston War Memorial

Sadly, in 2011, vandals stole the metal memorial plaques from the war memorial, which recorded all the names of the fallen.

That November, Willaston schoolchildren wrote out the names of the dead and they were used for the service.

The story reached the national press and a widely publicised fundraising campaign, raised sufficient money to replace the plaques with greater security. The remaining money is maintained in a fund for the future repair and upkeep of the Willaston War Memorial.
